At the September Merced County Farm Bureau Board of Directors meeting the Board voted to endorse Assembly Member Adam Gray for a second term as the representative of the 21th Assembly District.

Assembly Member Gray was elected by the 21th Assembly District in 2012 and from day one has been a tireless advocate for the entire Central Valley. He continues to be MCFB's strongest ally and advocate in the fight against the State Water Board's proposed unimpaired flows for the Merced, Stanislaus and Tuolumne Rivers. Adam has effectively established himself as a strong ally for all issues that impact the Central Valley, especially water. Specifically in the 2014 session Adam worked tirelessly in negotiating the passage of a comprehensive water bond that will be on the ballot for voters in November.

Upon learning of the endorsement Assembly Member Gray had this to say, "I am proud and honored to have received the endorsement of the Merced County Farm Bureau. Agriculture is the backbone of our community and during my first term in office, I have fought hard to protect our farms and families. This endorsement reflects those efforts."

President Bob Giampaoli had this to say about MCFB's endorsement, "Assembly Member Gray has done a superb job of working on behalf of growers in Merced County," he continued "The fact that he was able to guide the water bond to passage to be placed on the ballot in November, provides huge opportunity for agriculture and the entire San Joaquin Valley. We look forward to working with him in the future to protect agriculture, our leading economy."

The Merced County Farm Bureau has been working since 1917 to protect family farms and ranches on behalf of more than 1,400 members countywide.
